

ABSTRACT

The present invention includes a chemical monolayer construction that comprises:
(a) a substrate having a contact surface; and (b) a plurality of substantially parallel molecular units, wherein said molecular units are attached to said substrate so as to be strongly coupled electronically to said substrate, such as through a conjugated bond.
The present invention also includes electronic circuit components and devices including a chemical monolayer construction of the present invention.